Galvanic corrosion (also called bimetallic corrosion) is an electrochemical process in which one metal corrodes preferentially when it is in electrical contact with another, in the presence of an electrolyte. A similar galvanic reaction is exploited in primary cells to generate a useful electrical voltage to power portable devices.

Cathodic protection (CP) is a technique used to control the corrosion of a metal surface by making it the cathode of an electrochemical cell. A simple method of protection connects the metal to be protected to a more easily corroded "sacrificial metal" to act as the anode. The sacrificial metal then corrodes instead of the protected metal.

Today, 6 decades later, the U.S. Navy and its hostage-along-for-the-ride, the marines have been hampered by their own narrow, egotistical way of operating from the sea trying to relive only part of what worked in WW2 that gratifies the ego (Seaplanes and LTA Blimps excluded). To patrol the seas for subs, land-based civilian turboprop airliners must foray for thousands and thousands of miles ...
